Enniskillen bomb victims remembered

Services in Enniskillen

A number of special services have been held in Enniskillen, County Fermanagh, on the 20th anniversary of the Poppy Day bombing.

The Irish Republican Army`s (IRA) attack on a Remembrance ceremony in the town on the morning of November 8, 1987, killed 11 people.

A twelfth person, Ronnie Hill, slipped into a coma days after the bombing. He never woke up and died in December 2000.

Another 63 people were injured in the terrorist attack, 13 of them children.

No-one has ever been charged with the Enniskillen bombing. It is now one of the cases being investigated by the Historical Enquiries Team.
