The Irish government is being urged to press Downing Street for answers following fresh claims of British Army collusion with loyalists during the 70s.

A new book by a former UVF man alleges that a unit of the army - known as the Military Recognisance Force - trained members of the loyalist group.

"Killing for Britain" - which is published under the pseudonym "John Black" - claims this unit also planned a series of attacks throughout the decade, including the Miami Showband Massacre in 1975.

💻 Amazing! In other breaking news, a new book claims that the Pope in Rome is actually Roman Catholic

Nor is it new that a loyalist or an ex-member of the security forces makes such an admission...a handful of ex-UDR, RUC and Mil Intel men have admitted being party to, or present at "extrajudicial killings" with or without the presence of loyalist groups (Ken Barrett, Billy McCaughey, David Jordan, John Weir, etc, etc).

The British government then have the audacity to criticise the Chinese and the Russians for hiding the truth, yet they play dumb when it comes to their very own little Tibet...the truth of government sponsoring and direction of terrorism emerges like the corpse floating to the surface, but the justice for the victims and their families has yet to follow in To 'Always the Truth' - the article doesn't say anything about a revelation. It says 'fresh claims'. Yes Catholics and Nationalists may have been saying this for years. It is significant because this is a loyalist making the claims.

Where is the revelation? Nationalists and Catholics have known for years that the British trained loyalist terrorists and death squad.
